Every high-five, every shared laugh, and every proud smile reflected the love, encouragement, and confidence that fathers bring into their children's lives every single day. Because every child deserves a father who plays, supports, and believes in them—both on and off the field.

Where New Adventures Begin Again Back to Preschool

Over the past few days, we've welcomed hundreds of little smiles back to Li'l Miracles. We've also seen the tiny tears, the extra-tight hugs, the little hands that don't want to let go, and the parents who walk away wondering, "Did I do the right thing?" If that's you, we want you to know something very important:

You're not alone.

As parents, watching your child cry at the school gate can be heart-breaking. We know many of you drive away with a heavy heart, replaying those few moments over and over again. But what you're witnessing isn't rejection of school—it's simply your child learning to transition back into a familiar routine after weeks of holiday comfort.

Children have spent their days surrounded by family, sleeping a little later, playing a little longer, and enjoying the comfort of home. Returning to preschool is a big change, and like every big change, it takes a little time.

Parents should remember that a few tears at drop-off do not mean a child dislikes school. Instead, they are a sign that your little one is adjusting to change. With reassurance, patience, and consistency, children usually settle into their routine much faster than we expect.

HERE'S WHAT WE'VE SEEN WORK BEAUTIFULLY OVER YEARS:

Start Mornings a Little Earlier: Even an extra 20–30 minutes can make mornings calmer.

Lead with Confidence: Instead of asking, "Do you want to go to school?" say, "Let's go meet your teachers and friends!"

Acknowledge Their Feelings: A simple, "I know you're missing your holidays," can make them feel understood.

Keep Goodbyes Short: One hug. One kiss. One smile. Then leave confidently.

Trust Your Child's Teachers: Most tears stop within minutes. A favourite activity, a warm hug from a teacher, or spotting a friend is often all it takes for little smiles to return.

A LITTLE NOTE FROM US, TO OUR DEAR PARENTS

And to every parent walking away from the school gate with a heavy heart—we see you too. If those little tears stay with you long after you've left, please don't carry that worry alone. Talk to us. Share your concerns, ask us how your little one settled, and let us reassure you. Remember, your child isn't giving you a hard time—they're simply having a hard time. Every confident child who runs happily into school today once cried at the gate. Together, with patience, trust, and open conversations, we'll turn today's tears into tomorrow's smiles.

Experience with this school has been excellent. All the teachers and the Principal are very active and caring. The learning environment is ideal for young children, so kids enjoy coming here and understand concepts easily. If you are looking for a school for your child, you should definitely visit at least once before making any decision.

Seeing Hridyaa this happy and enjoying herself at school truly made my heart so full Today I genuinely feel I chose the right place for her. Watching her smile like this gives me so much satisfaction and peace as a mother. Thank you for creating such a loving environment for the kids.
